5. Scope of Services

5.1 MTC may deal on a Client's behalf on all Products as listed in MTC's Product Schedule (as amended from time to time).

5.2 MTC is both a technology company and financial service provider that provides innovative solutions and proprietary platforms for speculators in the spot foreign exchange, and spot metals market place to a specific niche global client base. As such they have created and provide online trading facilities and software platforms allowing Clients to efficiently deal in intra-day rolling spot currency Contracts, Metals, CFDs, and other derivatives. MTC will execute transactions on the Client's behalf solely on Client instructions and this should not imply any advice or any approval or recommendation on the merits of such transaction. MTC is not required to explain any risks that may arise from a particular transaction as the Client has had an opportunity to seek independent financial advice.

5.3 MTC does not provide advice, recommendation or direction on the merits of any particular transaction. However, from time to time, MTC may provide the following:

- A. Historical and/or factual information;
- B. General Product advice (without considering an individual Client's situation) ;
- C. Publications, updates, research or information sheets based on information from external sources.

It should be clearly noted that MTC makes no representations, warranties or guarantees as to the suitability, completeness, truth or accuracy of such information, recommendations or advice provided and does not accept any responsibility for decisions based (in full or in part) on such information. MTC recommends Clients consider all information, opinions and guidance in light of specific individual circumstances.

5.4 Neither MTC nor its employees trade on a discretionary basis. If approached by a staff member to trade on a discretionary basis, MTC requests that the Client rejects such an offer and advises MTC immediately of this approach.

5.5 As MTC is trading in OTC products, these are off Exchange (decentralized). The Client agrees that MTC can deal for the Client where the relevant underlying market or security is not regulated by the rules of any exchange or investment exchange. However, MTC may hedge such trades either through OTC contracts or Exchange traded contracts. In all cases, as MTC are not a member of any Exchange, those contracts will be traded with MTC's counterparties who may or may not trade directly on the Exchange.

6. Risk Warning

6.1 Some of the significant risks include the following:

Leveraged Products

The high degree of leverage that is obtainable in these type of Contracts because of small margin requirements, can work both for and against the Client. The use of leverage can lead to large losses as well as large gains. The Client may be required to pay further amounts to cover fees on open and closed positions.

Derivative market volatility

These markets are speculative and volatile. Prices of the Underlying Security can fluctuate rapidly and may reflect unforeseeable events or changes in conditions. These can be difficult, if not impossible, to predict.

Sometimes markets move so fast that 'gapping' or 'slippage' occurs. This is where markets move so quickly that sudden drops or increases occur. If this occurs in the Underlying Market, this also affects the price and may mean the Client is unable to close out a position or open a new position at the price at which the Client has placed the order.

The placing of contingent orders (such as a stop-loss order) may not always limit a Client's losses to the amounts they may want. Conditions may prevent execution of such orders.

Other Factors in the Underlying Market

As the price of the Contract is based upon an Underlying Asset several factors in the Market may also affect an individual's position. Certain political, governmental or other events may cause the underlying security to be suspended from trading. This may affect MTC's ability to offer our products to Clients, including closing out existing positions.

Where the Market lacks liquidity (because of insufficient trading activity or where order demand at a particular price or for a particular asset in a specific underlying market exceeds supply), this may affect MTC's ability to offer the relevant Contract in sufficient volume to allow a Client to close out a position or open a new position.

Margin calls

If the price moves against you, you may be required, at short notice, to deposit additional margin funds with MTC in order to satisfy our Margin Call requirements and maintain your position. This amount may be substantial.

If any Client does not provide those additional funds within the required timeframe, their position may be liquidated at a loss and they will be liable for any shortfall in their account. Positions are marked to market on a daily basis with payments being settled daily to account for market movements.

Minimum balance

If a Client's account balance falls below the minimum required balance as outlined in this Agreement or the Mt.Cook website, MTC reserves the right to reduce or close out that Client's positions. The minimum balance may be varied at MTC's sole discretion.

Loss caused by spread

If a Client opens a position and closes it before the market has moved favorably, they may still incur a loss to the extent of the spread and any fees and commissions payable. Furthermore, the spread may be larger at the time the Client closes the position than when they opened it.

Liquidation

MTC reserves its right not to accept a Client's order request or to close out a position without their agreement in certain circumstances. Please refer to Clause 12 of these Terms and Conditions.

Third Party Supply

Data supplied by third parties may be delayed, incorrect or unavailable. MTC is not responsible for provision of those information services nor the consequences if they fail, are delayed or are wrong.

Foreign Exchange exposure

Client accounts are maintained in the currency that Client has nominated (Base Currency).

Where a Client deals in a Contract that is in a currency other than their Base Currency, all margins, profits, losses etc relating to that Contract are calculated using the currency in which the Contract is denominated.

For this reason, a Client's profits and losses may be affected by fluctuations in foreign exchange rates. The conversions of the foreign currency balance of that Client's account are undertaken automatically each day at End of Day using the Exchange Rate as quoted by MTC.

Operational risk

While MTC have made every reasonable effort to ensure continuity of services, operational risk such as disruptions to communications, computers, networks or external events may lead to delays in the execution and settlement of a transaction.

All other risks in MTC's DISCLOSURE DOCS

Notably those listed in the Risk Disclaimer and the Trading Risks documentation, as well as all other documentation in the full set of Disclosure Docs.

Indemnification

Should any Client fail to pay or provide security for amounts payable to MTC or fail to perform any obligation as outlined in the Client Agreement, these Terms and Conditions allow MTC to take steps to protect our position (including for example the power to close out positions and to charge default interest). Under these Terms and Conditions, the Client also indemnifies MTC and its agents, representatives and employees against certain losses and liabilities. MTC's liability is expressly limited. Please read these Terms and Conditions and our Disclosure Statement carefully to ensure these matters are clear prior to signing any documentation.

Regulatory requirements

As these products are Contracts with MTC directly and are not traded on a licensed market or regulated exchange (i.e. the spot markets are typically decentralized, OTC markets), they are not afforded the same protection as trades undertaken through an exchange or licensed market. There is no Guarantee Fund or equivalent applicable to trading in the OTC market.

Changes to various legislations, regulatory or taxation requirements may affect MTC's ability to provide said services to the Client and/or may have an adverse effect on the Client's dealings with MTC.

7. Account management

7.1 Account Opening

In order to open an account, the applicant will be required to complete the relevant Application form(s), read the full set of DISCLOSURE DOCS (including detail of the risks associated with trading these instruments) and provide identification as specified in the application's KYC/AML portrait. MTC is under no obligation to open an account with any individual or entity, even if all information has been provided.

7.2 Password

Once the Client's account is opened, the Client will be issued with a password and login details to access their trading platforms. It is the Client's responsibility to ensure their password is kept secure. Should this security be breached, the Client must inform MTC immediately. Upon confirmation of identification, MTC will reissue a new password and, if requested by the Client, place a hold on the Client's account.

7.3 Minimum deposit

Once a Client decides to trade, they will be asked to deposit an initial sum of money. This will include the money the Client wishes to trade and an Initial Margin sum (covering the Margin requirements). At present, a minimum deposit of $1000 is required to commence trading, however in many cases exceptions can be made to include lower minimum deposit amounts, and this minimum may change at any time without prior notice. Changes will be reflected on MC's website and application. MTC also reserves the right to set unique minimum investments for certain classes of clients or individual clients, or usage of certain platforms.

7.4 Right to call for funds / security

MTC may call for payment of money or the provision of other security which MTC considers, in its absolute discretion, appropriate in connection with the obligations incurred by it in respect of Contracts entered into for a Client's account. Time is of the essence and the Client must pay any amount called or provide security within 24 hours of the call for payment or, within 48 hours unless an alternative time period is stipulated in this Agreement. However, MTC reserves the right to close out client positions where there is insufficient equity held in the account.

7.5 MTC Trading and Rights of Client

MTC, its partners or employees may deal in Contracts as principal on their own account. Upon placing an Order with an Executing Dealer (which may or may not be MTC), the Executing Dealer incurs obligations as principal, even though the Contract may have been entered on the Client's instructions.

7.6 Account operation

Where a Client has more than one Account open with MTC, each account will be treated as an entirely separate Account unless MTC are advised in writing by the Client (and MTC, in its sole discretion agree) to treat the Client's Accounts as one Account.

Where Accounts are treated separately, this means that any credit, (ie monies deposited as margin) will not, except where MTC exercises its rights of these General Terms and Conditions, discharge any of the Client's liabilities in respect of another Account.

Where Accounts are treated as one Account, all references to Account in this Agreement will be references to the aggregated Accounts.

7.7 Use of Client's Daily statements Or Reports

You agree to use your daily statements or back office reporting to confirm all orders that you place with us and monitor your margin obligations. MTC still reserves its right, in its sole discretion, not to accept any order given by you.

7.8 Account statements and BO Reporting

MTC will report all open positions and open orders to you via our electronic trading platform, with a daily statement, or via Back Office reporting, providing a summary of open positions, free equity, margin requirements, cash balances, and fees and charges provided to you on a daily basis at the end of each trading day.

We encourage you to become familiar with the tools we provide you and understand how to read key elements such as your margin requirements, open positions, and any free equity.

7.9 Client obligation to review

It is your obligation to review any deal confirmation we send to you immediately to ensure its accuracy and report any discrepancies that you may have to us within 2 business days.

7.10 Currency Ledgers

Each Account may operate several Currency Ledgers. This means that money may be paid into the Account in several different Currencies and any net balances will be reported in the corresponding Currency Ledger. MTC will generally settle trades in the relevant Currency where an appropriate ledger exists, except that where such Currency balance in that ledger is insufficient, MTC may settle trades in any Currency Ledger.

However, MTC will report all sums due to or from MTC in the Base Currency at market rates as provided in our trading system at the time of the daily rollover.

At any time, the Client may request amounts to be converted into the Client's Base Currency at the relevant exchange rate as quoted by MTC and MTC reserves the right to convert into Base Currency only where any Currency Ledger balance falls below US$200 or its currency equivalent.

7.11 Contract notes

MTC will send the Client a contract note containing essential details of the transaction following the purchase or sale of any investment.

All transactions will be due for settlement in accordance with the market requirements (as shown on the relevant contract note or advice). The Client will ensure that MTC receives all cash and securities when due with respect to any transaction which is to settle on that Client's behalf and that all cash or investments held by, or transferred to, MTC will be and remain free of any lien, charge or encumbrance. All payments due to MTC will be made without set-off, counterclaim or deduction.

The value date for all transactions will be the second business day after the date of the transaction. Business days are Mondays to Fridays (excluding public holidays observed in New York). MTC may agree, at its discretion, to provide credit for a transaction to be carried out overnight for a fee.

8. Client Money

8.1 Segregation of funds

All money received from the Client or a person authorised by the Client is held in a separate Segregated Client Bank Account, which is ring-fenced and kept independent from the Company's working and operating capital at all times.

The Client agrees and acknowledges that, while client money is segregated from house money, all client funds are pooled in an "omnibus account" structure for clearing, typically by having a margin clearing account at a Prime Broker, or Prime of Prime account.

Under this structure funds going in to or out of MTC's segregated client accounts, can only remain on deposit, or go to one of two places. 1.) To MTC's designated Prime Broker and/or Liquidity Provider directly for clearing, or 2.) Back to the original client.

8.2 Authorised deductions

The Client agrees that MTC is entitled to:

(a) Withdraw, deduct or apply any amounts payable by the Client to MTC and/or any associate of MTC from Client moneys held in any segregated account or invested by MTC, including, without limitation, making a payment for, or in connection with, the margining, adjusting or settling of dealings on Contracts entered into by the Client, or the payment of finance charges, commissions or interest to MTC with all such amounts belonging to MTC; and/or

(b) Use the funds in the client segregated accounts to manage MTC's dealings with counterparties with respect to client positions. These counterparty accounts will also be afforded the same segregation protection as mentioned above.

(c) Deal with any property, other than money, given to MTC by the Client, in such manner as MTC in our sole discretion consider appropriate in consideration and in connection with the margining, adjusting or settling of dealings in Contracts with us or selling or charging any or all of such property that may be in our control following a Default Event.

(d) Retain all interest earned on client money held in segregated accounts with a bank, approved deposit taking institution and/or exchange clearing house.

8.3 Interest

MTC will not pay any interest on client money that is held for a Client.

If, however, there is a debit balance on the Client's Account, then MTC are entitled to charge the Client interest at an interest rate as set by MTC on the full amount of that balance and the Client will be required to pay such interest. All interest rates are available from MTC upon request.

8.4 Deposits

Clients may transfer funds to MTC using any of the following methods (more methods may be added or removed at the sole discretion of MTC):

- Bank wire transfer (SWIFT) to MTC's custodian banks, affiliated banks, subsidiary banks, or fiduciary banking partners.
- Internal bank transfer (if at the same bank)
- BACS CHIPS and SEPA transfer
- Credit Card
- E-wallet Payment Providers
- Cryptocurrencies

NOTE: We do not accept cash deposits.

It is the Client's responsibility to ensure all funds are accurately referenced with the Client name and email to allow MTC to promptly apply funds to the correct Account. We are not responsible for any delays incurred as a result of incorrect or incomplete referencing of funds transferred. MTC will only act on cleared funds so to maintain the Client's open positions MTC recommends a Client maintains sufficient margin to allow time for clearance and transfer of funds.

Third Party Accounts: It is the Client's responsibility to ensure that all moneys paid into their Account are from an account in the Client's own name and not any third party, unless MTC have been advised in writing, and have agreed to such arrangement prior to sending of such monies.

We are under no obligation to accept monies from any third party and will not accept or bear any liability of responsibility for any loss, damage or other event arising from our decision to return such monies, including any loss incurred by you because you are subsequently in default of your obligations under this Agreement.

8.5 Withdrawal of Client Money

The Client may withdraw funds from an Account by sending a completed withdrawal request form by fax, email/website/CRM, or post. This must detail Client Account details, the amount of the withdrawal and the account the money is to be paid into. MTC will not pay monies into a third party account so the account must be in the name of the Account holder.

The Client will only be able to withdraw money available after margin obligations have been met and any fees, commissions or other charges have been deducted. We typically require a minimum of $USD1000 to maintain an open account. This may be waived at MTC's sole discretion.

8.6 Third Party transactions

MTC is entitled to delegate some of its responsibilities to a Third Party or Associated Entity, including (but not limited to) an Exchange, clearing house, affiliated, subsidiary, or fiduciary custodian banking partners, an intermediate broker, liquidity provider, prime broker, settlement agent or OTC ("Third Party"). MTC shall not have or assume any liability for any loss which the Client may sustain as a result of the insolvency, acts or omissions of any such Third Party.

8.7 Unclaimed monies

In certain circumstances, MTC may hold client money for a Client which has been allocated but not claimed by them. MTC will cease to treat any unclaimed balances as client money after a period of six years, provided that all reasonable steps have been taken by MTC to contact the Client regarding this balance. MTC undertake to make good any valid claim against balances that were released from being treated as client money, upon the provision by the Client of information to evidence the validity of their claim.

9. Execution of orders

9.1 Placing an Order

Orders may be received in writing or in any of the following ways:

- electronically, via our electronic trading platform or online chat
- telephone (note calls may be recorded)
- in writing (including by email or facsimile, where authorized)

It is the Client's obligation to ensure that their instructions have been received by MTC.

Orders must be received allowing sufficient time for MTC to implement them and MTC does not accept responsibility for any errors or omissions resulting from misunderstandings in respect of oral or written instructions. It is the Client's responsibility to ensure that all details relating to the Client's Order are accurate; including without limitation the name of the Contract or Security bought or sold, the volume and the total value of that Order.

If MTC does not receive notification of any potential order discrepancy within two (2) business days, the daily trading statement of confirmation issued by MTC to the Client via the online trading platform will be deemed to have been accepted by the Client.

9.2 Hours of operation

MTC generally operates between the hours of 23.00 Sunday GMT time and closes at 21.00 Friday GMT time except that:

(a) MTC is under no obligation to quote prices or accept orders or instructions in respect of any Contract on a public holiday in any jurisdiction which, in MTC's reasonable opinion, affects the relevant underlying markets; and

(b) MTC are under no obligation to accept orders or quote prices during any time when the relevant exchange is closed for business; and

(c) MTC reserves the right to amend these hours as above from time to time at its sole discretion.

All orders received outside Trading Hours will not be implemented until the commencement of the next Trading Day.

9.3 Order Types

A list of Order Types are enabled or not, in their electronic trading platform and may be published on MTC's website and may be amended from time to time.

9.4 Order Execution

In accordance with MTC's Allocation Policy, orders will be executed in the sequence in which they are received; except that it may be possible that client orders may be filled before house trades are filled.

9.5 Order Confirmation

Should the Client place an order via our electronic trading platform, they will receive instant confirmation as to the status of the order. It is important this is checked carefully. Telephone orders may be repeated back to the Client for confirmation and the conversations may be taped. (Note Clause 15 re notification of errors or discrepancies)

9.6 Right to Refuse to Deal and to Retract

MTC reserves the right to, at any time, limit or refuse to enter into a Contract for the Client but warrant that we will notify you of any refusal or limitation as soon as practicable. Such refusal or limitation shall be without prejudice to any other rights and powers under this Agreement. MTC is not required to act in accordance with the Client's instructions where to do so would cause a breach of any applicable legislation, rules or regulations or cause a breach of this Agreement.

MTC reserves the right to dispute, reject, or reverse closed or historic trades up to a maximum of 90 days if a given liquidity provider of MTC's retracts or debits funds from MTC due to a specific trade, a toxic trade, a series of trades, or any predatory trades. Such retractions or debits, should they occur are at the sole discretion of MTC's Liquidity Providers, not those of MTC, and MTC will not be held liable or accountable for any such retractions or debits of trades or funds requested by any of MTC's liquidity providers. MTC will always cooperate with their liquidity providers and their prime brokers. In this situation, should it arise, clients will be given a written notification as to the action taken, and although not required of MTC, MTC may provide a detailed description and explanation of the incident causing the retraction and a clear explanation of the recourse needed to rectify the retracted funds.

9.7 Opposite Positions

MTC currently follows a Direct Market Access (DMA) and/or ECN agency model protocol, which is also imposed on them by their Prime Brokerage. All trades are routed directly through to the interbank marketplace via a bridge and price aggregation engine to manifold liquidity providers via contractual agreement lodged with MTC's Prime Brokerage. Please note that while this is currently the case, MTC may provide b-book services, run risk, and hedge client positions in the future if desired and this may change at some point in the future at MTC's sole discretion should MTC wish to cater to a wider retail client base, and should they be within their legal boundaries to do so.

9.8 Close Out of Positions

At any time, with or without notice to the Client, and in addition to any other rights MTC may have under this Agreement, MTC may choose to close out or limit the size of a Client's open position(s) (net or gross) if any of the following circumstances occur:

(a) MTC reasonably consider there are abnormal market or trading conditions; or

- (b) MTC are unable to quote prices in the relevant market due to lack of market information (for whatever reason); or
- (c) MTC consider that a Client may be in breach of a relevant regulation or law or be privy to “inside information” within the meaning of various globally recognized Securities Markets Acts; or
- (d) A Client has failed to provide any margin, deposit or other sum due under this Agreement in respect of any Contract or such margin amounts or Collateral fall below our margin requirements; or
- (e) The combined size of all the Client’s orders and/or all other orders for a Contract exceeds MTC’s Normal Trading Size; or
- (f) Where a Contract is withdrawn from MTC’s Product Schedule; or
- (g) MTC are requested to close out or limit a Client’s position by any of MTC’s Securities Commission or other regulatory body; or
- (h) MTC exercises our rights under Clause 26.1 of these General Terms and Conditions.
- (i) MTC determines that the client is conducting unethical, or predatory trading practices which may cause problems with their Prime Brokers or Liquidity Providers.

9.9 End of Trading Day

These contracts are valued at the end of the trading day and reopened the following trading day at the current market price with the resulting profit or loss either debited or credited to the clients account.

9.10 Cancellation of orders

An order (or part of an order) can be cancelled at any time prior to its acceptance by MTC. If not received prior to acceptance, then that order shall be considered valid and binding under these General Terms and Conditions and the Client will be liable to settle the Order, in whole or in part as relevant.

9.11 No legal or Beneficial Interest in Underlying Asset

The Client acknowledges that investing in these type of Products does not transfer the legal or beneficial interest in any Underlying Asset and the Client has no right or obligation to acquire or deliver such Underlying Asset.

9.12 ECN and MT4 Account Synchronizations

Sometimes an MT4 ECN account will not match the ECN backoffice exactly due to a number of different reasons (swaps, portfolio execution, off-market pricing, booking at rollover and re-opening on the ECN), however usually this value is not far off and the discrepancy is low. Longer-term and larger positions, or market and charting anomalies may enhance this effect. MTC have an equity synchronization script that gets run periodically to sync the two platforms, and in some cases a manual sync is required.

Trades, pricing, fix logs, and time/sales events and values in the ECN reflect true market settlements and shall always take precedence over MT4. On the ECN stream, MT4 is simply a GUI connected to the ECN via a bridge. Thus the ECN back office reflects the true and accurate value of accounts and positions.

10. Client instruction

10.1 Instructions

The Client agrees that any instruction and communication sent by the Client or on its behalf is made at the Clients risk and the Client authorises us to rely and act on, and treat as fully authorised and binding upon the Client, any instruction (whether or not in writing) which MTC believes in good faith to have been given by or on behalf of the Client by any intermediary whom MTC believe in good faith to have been duly authorised by the Client.

MTC are entitled to act on the basis that all trades, orders or instructions transmitted online using your login, password, and/or account number are authorised by you unless we have already been notified, in writing, by you of a suspected breach of your login or password details. We are not required to establish the identity of any person quoting a Client’s username, account number and/or password or if we reasonably believe that person to be an Authorised Person.

It is your sole responsibility to keep all security information relating to the Account confidential (including username, password and account details) and to advise us immediately in writing if you believe that such details have been breached.

MTC is not liable in any way for any act or omission by us in reliance on any instruction given or action taken by a person acting or purporting to be acting on behalf of the Client who is not listed as an Authorised Person

MTC reserves its right to in our absolute discretion and without explanation to the Client, refuse to act upon any instruction, particularly if MTC believe that it may not be practical or in our opinion infringe any law, rule, regulation or term of this Agreement and will not be liable for such act or omission in accordance with our limitation of indemnity in Clause 11 of these General Terms and Conditions.

This clause will not apply where liability arises from an act of, negligence or dishonesty of MTC, its agents or employees.

10.2 Authorised Persons

Those persons authorised to instruct MTC with respect to your account are any persons listed in the account Application Form, or later amended to the account, as an "Authorised Persons" or those persons whose names have been received in writing to MTC as Authorised Persons and who have been accepted by MTC as an Authorised Person (ie provided the required identification and met all compliance requirements).

Instructions accepted by such Authorised Persons are deemed to have been placed by the Client and MTC may also provide information on the Account to such Authorised Persons. The Client warrants that such Authorised Persons may give instructions, place Orders and have read the Terms and Conditions of operating an Account with MTC.

On occasion, and at MTC's sole discretion, MTC may require Client confirmation where an instruction from an Authorised Person seeks to close an Account or remit money due to the Client.

By including Authorised Persons on the Client's Account, the Client personally indemnifies MTC against any costs or losses MTC may suffer as a result of the Authorised Person, or a person who appears to MTC to be an Authorised Person, giving incorrect or unauthorized Orders, instructions or failing to comply with the terms of this Agreement.

10.3 Cancelling Orders

If the Client wishes to close a position, then any related orders must be cancelled. MTC cannot revoke any orders once initiated in the system so the Client will be liable for all orders made once actioned.

10.4 Communication difficulties

If at any time the Client is unable for any reason to communicate with MTC we shall not:

(a) be responsible for any loss, damage or cost caused to the Client by any act, error, delay or omission resulting from the failure to communicate, where such loss, damage or expense is a result of the Client's inability to enter into a transaction, and

(b) be responsible for any loss, damage or expense caused to the Client by any act, error or omission or delay resulting from that inability, including without limitation, where such loss, damage or expense is a result of the Client's inability to close a transaction, except where the Client's inability to instruct MTC or communicate with us results from MTC's fraud, willful default or negligence.

10.5 Power of Attorney

A person authorised under a limited power of attorney as verified by MTC, may be an Authorised Person once approved by MTC.

10.6 Assignment

This Agreement is between the Client and MTC and the Client is not entitled to assign or delegate any obligations or rights to any other party without MTC's prior written consent.

MTC retains the right to assign to or take an assignment from any party of any benefits associated with this Agreement, any Contract or the balance of a Client's account.

If any Client defaults in payment of obligations owed to MTC, we retain the right to assign to any person all or any of our rights in respect of money owing to us under this Agreement, as well as any security or other remedies in respect of such default.

11. Indemnity / Liability

11.1 Unless caused by MTC's direct fraud, willful default or gross negligence, neither we nor any associated company nor any employee shall be liable to the Client:

(a) for any loss of profits, indirect, consequential or incidental damages, liabilities, claims, losses, awards, injury, proceedings or costs suffered or incurred by the Client in connection with the Services we provide to the Client as set out in this Agreement; or

(b) for any misinterpretation of any information or general advice provided by, or on behalf of, MTC relating to a transaction entered into or proposed to be entered into under this Agreement; or

- (c) if MTC do not act on Client instructions or are unable to provide any service under this Agreement as a result of some factor that is beyond our reasonable control (for example, Act of God, failure of computer or related systems, failure of market systems, failure of trading software or failure of any third party to provide any service to which this Agreement relates); or
- (d) if we do not act on Client instructions or are unable to provide any service under this Agreement as a result of failure of computer systems, telecommunications systems, component failure, power failure or other unanticipated failure; or
- (e) for any loss or damage caused as a result of a Client trading on money deposited into their Account in error by us. We will remedy all such errors as soon as practicable following notification of such error.

Unless caused by our direct fraud, willful default or gross negligence, the Client will upon demand, indemnify us, our associated companies and employees against any costs, damage, losses or liabilities however arising by reason of or in connection with any action taken, not taken, or any transaction entered into or not entered into by MTC under this Agreement.

12 Fees and Charges

12.1 Client obligation to pay charges

All charges will be notified to the Client in writing prior to the relevant dealing or trading taking place. Such charges will be either as outlined in this Agreement, the DISCLOSURE DOCS, the website, or as otherwise notified in writing and will take effect on the date mentioned in the written communication.

The Client agrees to pay:

- (a) Commission as notified by MTC as well as any other transactional fees charged or levied by MTC or an Exchange. This commission will be itemized separately on the statement we send to you or found in the trading platform. Commission rates may be changed from time to time; and
- (b) Any fees, commissions, financing and rollover charges as set out in the Client Services Agreement and/or Disclosure Statement; and
- (c) Any costs as identified in the Client Services Agreement and/or Disclosure Document, including but not limited to swap charges, fund deposit, fund withdrawal fees or network costs; and
- (d) Any other costs incurred by MTC as a result of Client trade investigations or defaults under the terms of this

Agreement, including all legal costs and expenses; and

(e) Interest payable where an amount owed to MTC by the Client is overdue. In such circumstance, interest may be charged at the rate of 5% per annum above the bank Overdraft rate and accrued daily from the date it becomes due until the date the balance is paid in full.

The Client will be provided with details of the total price to be paid in connection with a transaction including all related fees, commissions, charges and expenses and taxes payable via us, or if an exact price cannot be indicated, the basis for the calculation of the total price.

12.2 Client obligation to pay margin

When dealing in Contracts with MTC the Client will be required to pay such sums of money as MTC may require under this Agreement and as specified in this Agreement or otherwise advised to the Client in writing.

Such sums may include Deposits, Initial Margin, Variation Margin, and Security, Collateral or other amounts required for clearance of any debit balance in an Account.

Liability to pay an Initial margin accrues at the time the Contract is executed regardless of when a call is made.

Liability to pay a Variation margin accrues at the time the margin comes into existence, regardless of when a call is made.

12.3 Rebates to third parties

MTC may rebate to third parties all or part of the commissions that are charged to the Client and undertake to provide further details on request. We may also have arrangements for spread-based rebates to third party introducing brokers where MTC considers such arrangements will not affect the spread we would otherwise have offered and we undertake to provide the Client with further details on request.

12.4 When due and payable

All such commissions, fees, taxes and charges owed to MTC will be accrued at the time of transaction (as advised on the Client statement), and will typically become due and payable on or before the 20th of each month following the transaction; except that, where a Client requests withdrawal of all funds held by MTC, such disbursements shall be deducted immediately prior to payment into the Client's bank account.

12.5 Payments

(a) Should the Client effect a transaction with us, the Client agrees that it will pay all transaction charges, fees, margins, settlements, interest and any other amounts due under this agreement on demand by MTC in cleared funds or otherwise as required in accordance with the terms of this Agreement.

(b) MTC are permitted to deduct, without further reference to the Client, charges relating to any services provided by us including administration charges, charges relating to the use of its electronic trading platform and royalties payable to any exchange from the Client's Account held with MTC during the full term of this agreement whilst the Client utilizes such services.

(c) Payments by the Client in accordance with this Agreement must be made without any offset, counter claim or condition and without any deduction or withholding of any or any other reason unless the deduction or withholding is required by applicable law. Should you be required to make any form of deduction in respect of tax from any payment to be made or if MTC is required to pay any tax in respect of any payment made in relation to this agreement at the Client's request the Client agrees to keep MTC indemnified against tax and agrees to pay to MTC any additional amounts required to ensure MTC receives the full net amount that is equal to the amount MTC would have received had a deduction, withholding or payment of tax not been made.

(d) MTC will pay the Client in respect of any credit balance amount in the Client's account, except that MTC may elect to withhold payment requested where:

- open positions show notional losses; or
- MTC considers that market conditions indicate that funds may reasonably be required to meet any margin requirements on open positions; or
- the Client has any contingent liability in respect of any other Account; or
- there is an unresolved dispute between the parties to this Agreement; or
- MTC are required to withhold funds in order to comply with regulatory or legal obligations

We will advise you if any of the above situations arise.

12.6 Currency of Payment

All amounts due to MTC or payable by MTC under this Agreement are payable in the currency MTC shall determine at the time of payment.

13. Deposits and margins

13.1 Initial Margin

Initial Margin is the amount debited from the Client account as soon as a new position is opened or an order is placed to open a new position. This acts as a security buffer and protects us in the event of Client default. Typically MTC will require an Initial Margin calculated as a percentage of the contract value.

The Initial Margin will vary depending on the Contract traded. The initial margin is determined at MTC's discretion mostly by the liquidity of the underlying asset on which the product is based. Once the Client is trading, the daily statement will show the Margin requirement for each trade as well as the Total Margin Requirement i.e. combined Margins of all Contracts.

MTC advises the Initial Margin rates on the website and electronic trading platform. Initial margin is debited from a Client account should the Client place an order which is not executed. This margin remains debited from the Client's account while the order remains on the market in anticipation of the order being filled. If the order is not subsequently filled the initial margin is credited to the Client's account when the Client cancels the Order.

Should the Order be filled the amount of the initial margin will remain debited and will be returned immediately once the position is closed.

13.2 Variation Margin

The Variation Margin is the unrealized profit or loss on a Client's open position. This is the difference between the value of the Contract when it was bought or sold and its current market price. Should a Client's position move in their favour MTC may refund part or all of the Variation Margin to the Client.

13.3 Gross Liquidation Value

The gross liquidation value (GLV) is the amount of money a Client would have left in their account should all of the Client's open positions be closed out at the current market price less any interest, fees or transaction charges. Free equity is the GLV of all the positions in the Client's account less the margin requirement. Free equity can be used to open a new position or can be withdrawn from the Client account. MTC may require the Client to maintain a minimum free equity balance in their account. MTC reserves the right to vary the margin requirement applicable at any time.

13.4 Client obligation to monitor

MTC will report all margin requirements on a daily basis at the end of each trading day through the trading platform. It is the Client's responsibility to ensure that they monitor or request all relevant information, including Margin requirements, prior to placing any orders or closing out positions. MTC will not be responsible for any losses the Client may incur in not monitoring or requesting this information.

At all times, it is the Client's sole responsibility to monitor all margin requirements under these General Terms and Conditions and any additional margin that may be required. To assist in this, we recommend that the Client consider this in light of the following factors:

- Volatility of the market & relevant Underlying Asset
- Any applicable exchange rate risk
- Any open positions
- Bank clearance times for funds transfer and clearance
- Any such matter the Client considers may affect your margin requirements

While MTC will make reasonable endeavors to make a margin demand, we are under no obligation to provide such demand and the Client may have to close out or limit positions as provided under this Agreement.

A Client's Margin requirement for each Contract will fluctuate based on i) the price of the Underlying Contract and/or ii) foreign exchange rate changes if the Contract traded has a different Currency than the Client's Base Currency Account.

If adverse market movements occur, the Client may be required to deposit additional money (called a Margin Call) to cover the fluctuating margin requirement for a particular Contract. Whenever trading, the Client will need sufficient equity in their Account to maintain the Total Margin requirement.

13.5 Liability for margin calls

The Client is responsible for payment of margin calls, deposits and other security as requested by MTC and the following is drawn to Client's attention:

- Liability to pay an initial margin accrues at the time the trade or deal is executed regardless of when a call is made. Liability to pay a variation margin accrues at the time the margin comes into existence, regardless of when a call is made.
- Client liability is the total of all margin calculation provisions.
- Should MTC make a margin call the Client is required to deposit funds into their account within 24 hours or the Account will be taken to be in default. In some circumstances, MTC may require payment within shorter time frames, (eg in times of increased market volatility) and payment will need to be made within these time frames in order to meet margin requirements.
- We may make attempts to contact Clients by their preferred method of communication. MTC are under no obligation to contact Clients. Where the market moves quickly or open positions are moving, we reserve the right to close out such positions under this Agreement without making any margin demand or any contact with the Client.

Failure to meet margin call requirements may mean that we limit or close out positions in accordance with the terms of this Agreement. It is the Client's sole responsibility, 24 hours a day, to monitor their own positions and maintain the required margin.

- A margin call is triggered when your Net Asset Value reaches a certain point of your available margin. However, a margin call at the defined price is not always guaranteed. In an extremely fast moving market or an intervention/black swan event, quotes coming in from liquidity providers may be too steep or rapid for MTC's platform or aggregator to execute the closing of your trade(s) at the proposed margin call levels. This margin slippage may create a negative balance in your account.
- Mt.Cook uses an automated transaction monitoring and risk-management system to prevent a client's balance from falling below the level of their initial deposit. Our margin call and stop out policies in fact prevent this prior to happening and can be found on our trading terms and conditions page on the www.mtcookfinancial.com website.

In rare instances and black swan events however, it may be possible for an account to run negative and breach margin call software metrics. As such and in the event of this rare occurrence, it may be possible that you owe money to Mt.Cook due to holding a standing negative balance in your trading account. It must be fully understood by the client that these situations are completely out of the control of Mt.Cook, and it will be the responsibility of the client to cover such negative balances should they occur.

- Preventative measures vs reactive measures are paramount to ensuring that black swan events pass by leaving Mt.Cook unscathed. Some of these prevention measures implemented at Mt.Cook include stringent risk management of our full coverage accounts, strong capital adequacy, responsible and reduced leverage and margin management, and top tier software implementation and utilization. These help to greatly reduce chances of such events occurring in the first place. Multi-bank liquidity aggregation as used on our DMA and ECN feeds also helps immensely to ensure a constant and steady stream of quotes during black swan events vs single sourced liquidity, which may disconnect for hours at a time. All potential safeguards serve as preventative measures during black swan events, and are fully implemented at Mt.Cook.

- Any reduction in the application of Limited Hours trading means that open positions will be marked to market after close of trading and Client margin requirements will vary accordingly. If Clients do not wish to accept this additional risk, any affected Contracts may be closed out at any time after notice of such reduction has been given.

13.6 Delays in funds transfers

On occasion, MTC may, in its sole discretion, allow a Client time to forward funds to meet their margin requirements. This permission is given on a case by case basis and only upon prior written authority from MTC. Cleared funds are typically (but not always) credited to Client Accounts on Business Days between 9.00am and 5.00pm Monday to Friday (EST). Where funds are received outside these hours, they will usually be credited on the next Business Day between 9.00am and 5.00pm.

14. Default Events

14.1 Default Events

The Client will be considered in default of this Agreement if any of the following events occur, whether or not they are within a Client's control:

- failure to make any payment required under this Agreement (including monies owed under Margin Call) or on any account whatsoever payments are not duly paid or satisfied as and when they become due;

(p) MTC reasonably considers it necessary for the protection of itself or its Associates.

14.2 Actions Following a Default Event

(a) Upon or after any Default Event occurs, MTC, without prejudice to any other rights it may have under this agreement, has the right and power in its sole absolute and unfettered discretion and without necessity to give prior or any notice to the Client to do any one or more of the following:

(i) terminate this agreement in accordance with the termination provisions of these General Terms and Conditions;

(viii) exercise any power or right that MTC may have in accordance with this Agreement or in law or equity or take any other form of action as we may be required to take.

(b) MTC shall not forgo any of the rights outlined in this Clause incurred as a result of a delay in the exercise of such rights and should MTC not exercise any of its rights it reserves the right to do so at any time in the future.

(c) Where MTC exercises its rights under this Clause, the Client authorises MTC to close out at its own risk and expense as if the Client had given notice on the date that MTC exercises its right, in accordance with Clause 26 and to cover any amount owed by the Client into US Dollars either at date of Client's default or on the date on which the Client pays the amount owed to MTC in full.

(d) In the event of MTC treating a Contract as having been terminated by the Client and MTC exercising its rights in accordance with this Clause, MTC will calculate the amount owing by the Client or MTC as if the Client had been given a Closing Notice and had accepted the Closing Price determined by us. MTC will have the right to debit from the Client's Account an amount equal to the amount which would have been payable by the Client had the Contract been closed at the Closing Price. This amount represents the damages incurred by MTC.

(e) Any action taken by MTC in accordance with this Clause shall not limit any other provision of this agreement and be without prejudice to any rights MTC may have to any remedy or damages.

15. Errors

MTC agrees to make good on a best effort basis any reasonable errors identified by the Client; except that:

MTC shall not be bound by any transaction which purports to have been made (whether or not confirmed by MTC) at a price which:

- i) MTC is unable to substantiate to the Client was manifestly incorrect at the time of the transaction; or
- ii) was, or ought reasonably to have been known by the Client to be incorrect at the time of the transaction.

The Client should verify the contents of each document received from, or made available by MTC. Such documents will, in the absence of manifest error, be conclusive unless the Client notifies MTC in writing to the contrary within 2 Business Days of receiving such document.

Despite anything to the contrary in this Agreement, the Client agrees that if a confirmation of a Contract, daily statement, monthly statement or other report is provided to the Client in accordance with clause 7 of this Agreement, the time for objecting to the contents of a document under clause 16 of this Agreement is from the time the relevant document is made available using the Electronic Facility.

16. Electronic trading

16.1 Access to electronic order routing system

If MTC provides the Client with access to an electronic order routing system, then the Client agrees and acknowledges that:

(a) MTC may establish an electronic facility over the internet that allows Clients to view, download and print the confirmations of Contracts, daily statements, monthly statements and other reports that MTC provides;

Market information provided through the system may not be accurate or current and that should be relied on at the Client's own risk.

17. Discretions

MTC reserves the right to exercise certain discretions in respect of Client trading and Account management. In this regard, MTC will consider our commercial objectives, regulatory considerations and ethical obligations as a dealer. These discretions include, but are in no way limited to a right to:

- Refuse any application for an Account without cause

- Call for funds or security where we consider it would make commercial sense to do so (refer Clause 7.4)
- Refuse to accept any trades placed by the Client that we judge to be clearly outside the prevailing market price such that they may be deemed non-market price transactions, whether due to manifest human error or stale/incorrect/broken price feeds. Where we have opened or closed a trade before becoming aware of the price disparity, we may at our absolute discretion either treat that trade as void or accept that trade at the prevailing Market price
- Determine Commission rates and financing charges,
- Decline the Client's instructions or cancel any Order or instruction without reason, where:

MTC is not liable for any financial inconvenience or consequence as a result of using such discretions to cancel, limit or refuse an instruction from a Client.

18. Advice

MTC does not give professional financial or taxation advice and strongly recommends that such advice is sought before entering into any agreement or engaging in any trading.

We may provide generic advice or market reports to all our Clients. These do not take into account any individual's specific circumstances, needs or financial objectives. We will not give advice about whether the Client should open, close or hold a Contract as MTC is an execution only broker.

19. Termination

Either party may terminate this Agreement by giving notice in writing to the other. Termination will be effective upon receipt of the notice by the other party in accordance with Clause 24 of this Agreement.

Termination does not affect the existing rights and obligations of either party at termination. Upon termination of this Agreement, we will close out all Contracts and close out, abandon or exercise any Contracts not yet exercised, entered into by us for the Client unless earlier advised to transfer these Contracts to another Dealer. The balance in the Client's account at termination will be repaid to the Client by bank transfer and will typically leave no later than five business days after this Agreement terminates.

We reserve the right to terminate this Agreement immediately and without notice in the event of any abuse of the Services provided, any abuse of our staff, or for any reason as may be deemed reasonable and appropriate by us in respect of our legal and regulatory obligations. MTC further reserves the right to suspend this Agreement pending review of our possible subsequent termination and without prior notice to the Client under such circumstances.
